VOLUME XXX NO. 66 SEYMOUR, INDIANA, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1911. PRICE TWO CENTS

DR. W. A. MILLIS SPEAKS TO H. S.

Compliments Superintendent J. A. Linke and the Teachers Upon Work Which is Practically Done.

MUCH IMPROVEMENT IS SHOWN Honor Roll of the High School For Last Six Weeks and also for Term Just Completed Given.

Dr. W. A. Millis, president of Hanover College, paid the city schools a high compliment in an address which he delivered before the high school yesterday. He said that he noticed a great improvement in the schools since he visited them a year ago and commended Superintendent J. A. Linke and the corps of teachers. He was especially pleased with the new school building which indicated a healthy growth in the school work in Seymour.

He gave a very interesting address upon the subject of "Will Determination." He pointed that the success of every man and woman was due largely to their determination to succeed and to reach their ideal and to accomplish some particular object in view. Dr. Millis said that much had been said about heredity but he thought that the obstacles received through heredity could be overcome by will power. He also told of the benefits of a college education, and said that men and women who were graduates of some school were better equipped to meet with success in life than those who did not have a college training.

The honor rolls for the various classes and for the entire high school for the past six weeks and also for the term which has just closed have been prepared. The general work in the school the past term shows a marked improvement and the teachers are much pleased with the progress that has been made.

The roll of honor and the percentages for the school for the past term are as follows:

Methodist Revival.

A large audience was present at this revival last night. The former pastor, Bro. H. H. Allen preached an excellent sermon, telling what salvation was and how it could be obtained. One young man was converted. The afternoon meetings are especially helpful to Christian people, leading them into deeper experiences of divine life. Meetings each day at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Parent-Teacher's Association.

The first regular meeting to the Parent-Teacher's Association will be held in the assembly room of the Shields High School, at 3:00 p. m. Friday, February 3. Subject for discussion is, "The Relation of the Home and School." It is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

Dance.

A very delightful dance was given by a number of young men at the Society Hall Wednesday evening. About twenty couples were present.

FREIGHT TRAIN WRECKED

Big Four Train Derailed on the Louisville Branch.

A Big Four freight train was wrecked on the Louisville branch a short distance west of Lovett this morning. The train was running at a high speed when one of the front cars left the tracks. Several of the following cars were derailed and the track was blocked. None of the crew was hurt. Several of the cars were demolished in the smashup, and the track was torn up for a considerable distance.

A passenger train on the branch, No. 41, was detoured to Seymour from Vernon and taken to Louisville over the Pennsylvania lines. The Seymour wrecking crew was called to the scene of the accident and were busy all day clearing up the wreckage and repairing the track.

SCOTT CIRCUIT COURT

Judge Shea Completes Work and January Term Adjourns.

The January term of the Scott Circuit Court has adjourned, after transacting a small amount of business. Several private matters were decided by Judge J. H. Shea, and a number of other cases determined.

Walter Neal, the young man who is held upon the charge of forging notes on the Scottsburg State Bank last fall, has not yet been sentenced. He pleaded guilty some time ago, but as he is wanted as a witness in the Sharick trial which will be called next term no sentence has been pronounced. Neal has been in jail at Scottsburg since last August. The Sharick case was called this term but was postponed on account of a defect in the affidavit.

BILL RETURNS TO GOVERNOR.

House Judiciary Committee is Telling Joke at Marshall's Expense.

Members of the house Judiciary Committee, who were unable to understand the meaning of a bill introduced by Representative Branaman to simplify court procedure, and who referred it back to its author for corrections, learned yesterday that the bill came from Governor Marshall and was introduced by Mr. Branaman at the suggestion of the Governor. The bill was given to Representative McMullen with instructions to give it to Mr. Branaman, who is expected to return the measure to the source from which it came. In the meantime members of the committee are telling the "joke" to their close friends.

BASKET BALL GAME

Seymour and Madison High School Teams Will Play Here Friday.

The manager of the Seymour High School basketball team has scheduled a game with the Madison high school team for tomorrow evening. The game will be played in the high school gymnasium where an excellent basketball court has been arranged.

The game last Friday resulted in a defeat for the quintet of the local team but since that game there have been several fast practice games and the boys believe they will be able to win from the visitors.

"WET" TERRITORY WOULD PAY COST

Of Trials For Intoxication in "Dry" Territory if the Clore Bill Passes in Legislature.

PROPOSAL OF LOCAL INTEREST

Trial Court Would Certify Costs of Trials to City or Township Concerned.

Representative L. B. Clore, the Democratic representative from Johnson county who voted against the repeal of the county local option law, has introduced a bill in the legislature which is intended to protect "dry" territory against costs brought about by the sale of liquor in neighboring wet territory. The bill is of interest to people of Jackson county as well as every other section of the state.

It provides that where there is a conviction for intoxication in "dry" territory it shall be the duty of the court to determine in the trial if possible where the liquor was obtained that caused the intoxication and to indicate the finding on this point in the judgment.

Then if the costs are not paid the city or township in which the liquor was obtained shall pay the expense of the trial including the cost of appeals.

It is provided that the court shall audit and allow the costs and certify them to the township or city concerned for payment.

It has been a complaint in dry territory that men would go to wet sections and secure liquor and returning home create disturbances which would result in heavy expense for trials, under the proposed law if Seymour should be dry and Columbus wet and in a trial here for intoxication it was found that the party secured liquor for his drunk in Columbus, the latter city would have to pay the bill if it could not be collected from the man fined.

Or if Seymour should be wet and Redding township dry and there was a conviction for intoxication in the latter territory and it was proved that Seymour provided the liquor this city would be called upon to pay.

Under the new option law with a smaller unit such a law as advocated by Clore might cost some cities heavily. The supporters of the measure contend that it is but fair that if one locality votes "dry" it should not have to bear expenses which are caused by a neighboring territory insisting on having saloons.

The liquor interests it is expected will make a hard fight against the bill becoming a law.

"The barrel of fun" at the Majestic last night proved to be of much enjoyment for the audience. The shoes belonging to a number of boys were placed in a barrel and the owners of the shoes spent several minutes in a hard scramble in trying to be the first to find their own.

Mrs. Katherine Short, a teacher in the city schools is quite ill. During her absence Miss Aylma Huckleberry is teaching her classes.

MARRIED.

SHIELDS-WILFORD

A beautiful home wedding took place in this city on Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock, when the Rev. Albert Ogle of Indianapolis pronounced the vows that united in wedlock Miss Mary Mabel Shields, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Shields of this city and Mr. Hugh Randolph Wilford, of Colon, Isthmus of Panama. The ceremony was performed at the Shield's home on Chestnut street.

A number of appropriate wedding airs were played as the guests, who included only relatives and a few personal friends, assembled for the ceremony. Mrs. W. F. Peter presided at the piano, and was assisted by Miss Frieda Aufderheide, violinist. Just before the wedding march was played, a beautiful duet was rendered by Miss Hannah Mills and Mr. Don A. Bollinger, "I Would That My Love," by Mendelssohn.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, the bridal party descended the stairs, Miss Agnes Wilford, sister of the groom and maid of honor entering first. Following her came the bride and her father who met the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. Frank B. Shields, at the altar. During the ceremony "Oh Thou Sublime Sweet Evening Star" was played softly.

The bride's gown was of soft white satin, overdressed with chiffon and trimmed with princess lace. The bodice was made with shoulder sleeves and was cut square in the neck. The corsage and skirt were delicately embroidered in seed pearls and the drapery was outlined with ropes of pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore an exquisite gown of pale green, satin trimmed with crystals, she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The beautiful home decorations and refreshments carried out the color scheme of green and white, white carnations, Ascension lilies and southern smilax being abundantly used throughout.

An altar for the ceremony was made of smilax, studded with carnations and roses with canopy overhead. On each side were tall cathedral candlesticks, between which were Ascension lilies and ferns.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilford left this morning for the groom's former home at Bowling Green, Ky., where they will make a short visit and then proceed directly to their future home at Colon where Mr. Wilford is manager of the United Fruit Company's extensive business.

The out-of-town guests were: Mrs. T. B. Wright and daughter, Mrs. Mary Loving Wright of Cadiz, Ky.; Mrs. Charles W. Baird of Ashville, N. C.; Miss Mary Agnes Wilford of Bowling Green, Ky.; Mr. Eldred Wilford of New Orleans, La.; Mr. Clifton Pace of Louisville; Mr. Ross McElroy of Bowling Green, Ky.; Mr. James E. Almond of Hanover College; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Brown of Minneapolis; Mrs. Minnie C. Brunner, Miss Lena Brunner and Miss Grace Carney of Franklin; Miss Helen Norton of Bedford; and Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Hopkins. Mrs. C. M. Vawter, Miss Maud Vawter and Miss Ruth Daniel of Cincinnati.

100 TREE PLANTERS

Are Wanted to Further Forestry In Southern Indiana.

The State Board of Forestry desires the names of 100 Hoosiers who are interested in forest planting and will co-operate with the board in an experimental plan. A bulletin just issued by Charles C. Deam, secretary of the board, states that the forest experimental tracts now being conducted by the state are in southern Indiana, and that it is desired to establish tracts to investigate the possibilities of tree growing in other parts of the state. The board is not in a position to lend financial aid to planters, the bulletin states, but it proposes to give suggestions as to the best kinds of trees to plant, how to prepare the ground, how to care for the trees, etc., and to make visits of inspection.

In return the owner of the planting is expected to keep a record of all items of expense and make observations, which are to be forwarded to the office of the secretary, where a permanent record of the planting will be kept. In this work the planter is free to do as he pleases. He plants the kind of trees he chooses and manages the way he believes is best. He gets the advice of experts without cost.

Splendid Work.

Rev. H. H. Allen, who has been assisting in the big revival at the Columbus Methodist church, has had splendid success. At the closing service Dr. Pitkin, the pastor, said of the service Rev. Mr. Allen has rendered the church during the two weeks' meeting: "I am more than delighted with his work here, whether in the pulpit or in the home on pastoral work he is a perfect gentleman. As to his sermons and talks I frankly say that he knows how to preach, Biblical, strong, apt, full of pathos often running over with humor, strong dignified well balanced. He knows how to use the breaks when necessary and also how to open wide the throttle and speed. I am sure that I voice the church when I say that we love him because he has helped us and left here an abiding benediction. We are stronger on the account of his stop here also the striking presentation of truth peculiar to himself. As a real pulpit orator, a scholar, a thinker, a leader, and above all else a splendid pastor-evangelist such as we are glad to have and always proud of. He has a warm place in our hearts and a welcome to our homes, and the First Methodist Episcopal church of Columbus will not forget him."

House Warming.

A company of Rebekahs gathered Wednesday night at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Dodd on N. Blush street and gave them a surprise as well as a house warming. The evening was pleasantly spent with games and a taffy pulling. Mrs. Dodd was presented with a beautiful piece of cut glass and a hand painted plate.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Lockman, Ezra Hinkle, George Meyer, Albert Barringer, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brethauer and sons, Leroy and Albert, Mr. and Mrs. John Lemons and daughter, Mrs. Kittie Brethauer, Mrs. Claude Morton and Misses Myrtle Morton and Bertha Messick.

AEROPLANES FOR BATTLESHIPS.

An aeroplane costs $5,000. An armored cruiser costs $5,000,000. The best of our armored cruisers, the Tennessees and the Montanas, have been rendered obsolete by the inflexible and the Von der Tann. Nor are we building new ones to succeed them. Therefore the aeroplane, as an adjunct to the battleship, becomes a matter of interest, both tactically and economically. The coming attempt of an aeroplane to fly from the deck of an ocean steamer back to New York harbor is a matter of prime moment. Though the federal government has rescinded the order detailing torpedo boats to assist in the experiment, the navy department will keep official watch on it. The result of this experiment may determine whether the naval authorities will equip the next new battleship with an aeroplane and the necessary facilities for making a flight from the ship's deck while at sea. The advent of the battleship-cruiser has made our best cruisers nothing but scouts, and not rapid ones, says the Chicago Record-Herald. Yet the cost of their maintenance is almost that of a dreadnought. If the aeroplane can perform scout duty at sea the cost of constructing and maintaining our navy will be immensely reduced. This new application of aeronautics to naval warfare seems, at present, a delicate and difficult matter. It will require expert aviators aboard ship and highly favorable conditions all around. Yet skilled and daring flyers are rapidly increasing in number and the ability to cope with varied atmospheric conditions is developing to match.

Showing American agricultural products alongside those of England and Scotland in those two countries may not strike many as promising valuable results to our people. But in other ways there seem to be opportunities. John N. McCunn, our consul at Glasgow, writes that he considers it a great mistake that American farm and dairy outfits are not on exhibition at the farmers' weekly markets in such Scotch towns as Kilmarnock, Kirkcudbright and other places of like character. It appears that the excellence of such devices is their own commendation. The inventive American mind has gone very far in contriving apparatus which economizes time and effort and increases efficiency, as the use of such appliances here has demonstrated. The old world has been slower, but the Scotch are quick to perceive advantages such as the American outfits assure, and Consul McCunn's hint might be taken with advantage to all concerned.

Carlyle once told a man who was financially interested in gold mining that all the gold ever produced by California was not worth one good mealy potato. And yet the potato in Scotland has a history of less than 200 years, says the Edinburgh Dispatch. When Macdonald of Clanranald, in 1743 brought seed potatoes for his tenants in South Uist they objected to planting them because the potato is not mentioned in the Bible! Somewhat later George Bachop, one of the Ochertyre tenants, when told by his wife that she had potatoes for supper, contemptuously replied: "Tatties! tatties! I never suppit on them a' my days, and winna the nicht. Gie them to the herd, gie me sowens."

Cape Town once lived under so severe a code of sumptuary laws that anything like display was restricted to the governor and his immediate circle. Thus runs Article VI. of the Dutch laws against luxury and ostentation: "No one less in rank than a junior merchant and those among the citizens of equal rank and the wives and daughters only of those who are or have been members of any council shall venture to use umbrellas." In practice this restricted the possession and use of umbrellas to about 50 persons in Cape Town.

An inventor in New York claims to have perfected a solid fuel for automobiles, the chief advantages of which are that it gives off no odor and is smokeless. As soon as we are assured that his new fuel is as he represents it to be we shall start a movement for the purpose of having him accepted as one of the country heroes.

A Punxsutawney (Pa.) man has invented a pocket telephone, about eight inches long, two inches broad and an inch thick, which can be used by putting a plug attached to it into a hole in boxes fixed on the telephone poles around the town. The idea is ingenious, but is the Punxsutawney pocket big enough for the device?

One reason New York city is so congested is that they can enlarge the island only upward and downward.

Fancy Feathers and Wings

THOSE who make up feathers into forms that are to decorate millinery, look with interest upon each wearer of plumage and each separate feather. Many thousands of persons spend their working hours sewing, pasting, wiring, branding and otherwise manipulating the plumage of birds (mostly domestic fowls) into new forms. Each feather is regarded with an eye to its possibilities in the evolution of something new by the manufacturers. Even the tiny feathers from the neck of the pigeon or peacock are handled separately, in making up the most expensive pieces. Just lately, large butterflies made of these, pasted to a foundation, covered on the outside and inside of the wings with the tiny feathers have made us marvel at the work of the designers. You can imagine the sheen of the wings and the splendor of color. The bodies are of velvet and the antennae of wired chenille or gold cord.

In Fig. 1 a fancy feather piece is shown, in which the form is purely artificial, that is, not made to copy any particular natural object, but an arrangement of plumage from different sources into an ornamental piece. The designer must consider whether his work is to be worn at the front, back or sides of a hat. The piece shown is made for the front. Beautiful and wonderful color studies and graceful lines are brought out in many of these decorations now almost universal.

To use them effectively, where they are large or elaborate, one must choose a proper shape and color, and remember that the hat and other trimming stuffs are to be considered as a background for the feather. In the example shown the velvet shape and ribbon bows all in one color and shade, frame in the handsome piece mounted at the front.

A small feather piece is not used in this way. The other trimming selected for the hat, leads up to it, and the fancy feather is to be used as the finishing touch, simply part of a whole. But milliners, and therefore manufacturers, are regarding with ever increasing favor, those feather pieces that are almost if not quite a complete trimming in themselves.

Nearly all the wings worn on hats are "made" wings, which term distinguishes them from "natural" wings. They are made so cleverly that it is difficult to believe they are put together by the hand of man. A pair of such wings springing from a band of feathers, is shown in Fig. 2. The band and wings form a single piece for which the velvet-draped turban makes an effective background. Such feather pieces make the work of the home milliner easy.

PRETTY DRESS FOR A GIRL

Simple Model That Calls for Either Serge, Fine Cloth or Cashmere.

For Small Girl.

stitched to waist back and front; the skirt is gathered to waistband, which connects it to the bodice.

Materials required: Four yards 48 inches wide, one dozen buttons.

Velvet Bags.

When you gather up the scraps of your velvet afternoon dress, don't throw them away. Make them up into a soft bag that should be carried with the dress. It can be square or round, and whatever other material you wish can be combined with it. A long silk cord, or silver or gold if you wish the metallic note, must be attached. This is thrown over the arm.

Beads, embroidery, little patches of tapestry or brocades and braid or lace, are easy ways of decorating the flat upper surface.

Just as a personal touch, embroider your monogram in a circle or diamond down in one corner.

Gloves.

The gloves of tan dog-skin or of gray undressed kid are the correct things to wear with the tailored suit, but the white glove is permissible on many occasions and the prettiest fancy in a white glove is the thick kid which may be bought for $1.50 a pair. They are soft in texture and wear well.

NEW DRESS TIP FROM PARIS

White or Cream Colored Voile, Embroidered Heavily, Approved Thing in Lingerie Dress.

The very latest news from Paris tells us that white or cream-colored voile, embroidered heavily, will be the approved thing in lingerie dresses for early spring. That seems to be looking a good way ahead, but if you do your own embroidery you will want this time to get ready in.

Really the possibilities are endless and fascinating. Either heavy embroidery (wallachian, for instance) will be used, or beadwork with rubber beads, or a combination of the two. Can't you just see a wall-of-troy design, worked solid in white and outlined beads? Or, perhaps, the beads would be black, and a black hat would be worn with the dress, or Alice blue, or old rose, or some other becoming and striking shade.

How pretty this would be in a three-piece suit, with the embroidery consisting of a skirtband, side plaits on the waist and collars and revers on the coat! Then there are other ideas—a Persian design worked out in vari-colored beads, for instance, or a spray of heavy flowers, morning-glories or passion flowers, with centers and veins accentuated by means of beads in the proper colors. In this case, the embroidery itself would be equally attractive in life colors or in white, or even in black.

Then there are all the metal effects. How lovely bronze would be on cream voile, or silver on pure white! Voile has the advantage of raveling easily, and so it would be quite possible to draw a thread all the way along the materials and work from that. Even drawnwork could be combined with these other effects.

Doesn't it make you want to start right away? Do have a dress like this for next season. I'm going to!

Lace Flower Pins.

The latest in dainty and charming pins for wear on collars and cuffs is a lace flower crocheted around an ordinary small safety pin. The flower is usually in violet form, though in white, and stands out stiffly from the pin.

When crocheted to a violet pin, it may be used to fasten jabots of flowers, and it is just as pretty, though not quite so new, as applied to the hatpin. A set of these lovely white lacepins—three for collar, two for cuffs—two hatpins and two stickpins would be the prettiest present a bride or a traveler to Europe ever received.

The bar of the safety pin is crocheted over and over to hide the steel. In black, with black pins, they solve the question of what to use in mourning.

NOVEL TAILORED SKIRT.

This skirt will be found a blessing by those who are obliged to alter last years garments as well as by those who have new material. The skirt has a seam in the center of the front and the gore which continues from this point to the plaits which form the back is circular in cut, fitted by small darts at the hips. The lower edges of this portion of the skirt are sloped downward toward the center of the front and joined to a deep shaped flounce. In the back two box plaits extend all the way to the hem. Two materials may be used in making this skirt or only one as preferred. It offers great possibilities for combinations and a satin or velvet flounce will add much to any style selected.

The pattern (5286) is cut in sizes 22 to 32 inches waist measure. Medium size requires 4 yards of 44 inch material.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department," of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

CHILD'S DRESS.

The little frock shown in the illustration recalls the popular jumper style. It consists of a waist or gulfupe which is tucked near the neck in front and which closes in the center of the back. This waist has bishop sleeves and a standing collar. There is a small bib, which is really part of the skirt and which is held up in place by straps which go over the shoulders to the belt in the back. The skirt is plaited all around. The combination shown in the illustration can hardly be improved upon, but plain colors may be used if preferred. The pattern (5251) is cut in sizes 3 to 11 years. Five year size requires 1 1/2 yards of 36 inch plaid material and 1 1/2 yards of plain for the waist.

The KITCHEN CABINET

HE capon burns, the pig falls from the spit. The clock hath struck twelve upon the bell. My mistress made it one upon my cheek. She is hot because the meat is cold. The meat is cold because you came not home.

What to Have for Supper.

Three-Leaf Clover Rolls.—Make the dough into three very small biscuit and bake in buttered muffin pans when risen.

Italian Potatoes.—Mix two cups of mashed potatoes with a teaspoonful of onion juice, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one egg yolk well beaten and the whites of four eggs beaten stiff, one-half a cup of grated cheese and salt and pepper to taste. Pile lightly in a baking dish and bake brown.

Milk Toast.—Prepare the toast by drying well before toasting a golden brown. Dip the edges in hot water, butter well and pour over the following white sauce: Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter in a sauce pan, add three tablespoonfuls of flour, salt and pepper and two cups of milk. Cook until smooth, then add a hard cooked egg, chopped or put through the ricer.

Maple Custard.—Beat six eggs slightly, mix carefully with three cups of milk, a pinch of salt and half a cup of thick maple sirup. Put into cups and set in a pan of water to cook. The custard is sufficiently cooked when a knife thrust into the custard comes out clean.

Orange Cake.—Cream three-fourths of a cup of butter, add one and a fourth cups of sugar gradually, then the yolks of six eggs well beaten, one-half a cup of cold water, two and a half cups of pastry flour well stirred with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Beat ten minutes.

Filling.—Cook together one egg, a cup of sugar, juice and rind of half an orange, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and two tablespoonfuls of flour, a tablespoonful of butter, all cooked until smooth.

Cabbage and Pepper Salad.—Cut crisp, tender cabbage in shreds, add a chopped green pepper and boiled dressing. A few nuts may be added to make it more elegant.

Pudding Sauces.

A list of pudding sauces is not always available. Here are a few that will be found easy to prepare and not expensive.

Golden Sauce.—Rub one-half cup of butter to a cream, add a half cup of light brown sugar and beat until light and creamy. Beat the yolks of two eggs, and when ready to serve put the bowl or pan containing the sugar over boiling water and stir until it is a liquid, then add the eggs, one-eighth teaspoon of mace, one-half cup of fruit juice, and stir until it thickens. Serve at once and stir before each pouring.

Fruit Sauce.—Blend one-half cup of butter and a cup of sugar, gradually work in one-half cup of jelly.

Hard Sauce.—Pour one tablespoonful of boiling water over one-half cup of butter, stir until creamy, mix in one cup of granulated sugar. Flavor with nutmeg or lemon extract or mace. Serve on orange or lemon cups, or heap in a small dish.

Orange Sauce.—Grate the rind of an orange and squeeze the juice over it. In a saucepan mix one cup of sugar with a fourth of a cup of flour or half as much cornstarch. Pour in a pint of boiling water and cook ten minutes. This sauce will keep several days. The yolk of an egg may be added to the sauce just before straining and the stiff white added after. Lemon or other fruits may be used to take the place of part of the liquid.

Molasses Sauce.—Scald a cup of molasses with an ounce of butter and a tablespoonful of vinegar. Serve hot with apple dumplings.

Funds to Fight Tuberculosis. Based on reports from all parts of the United States the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis has issued a statement which shows that in 1910 nearly $15,000,000 was spent in the fight against tuberculosis, as opposed to $8,000,000 spent in 1909. The largest item of expense in 1910 was for treatment in sanatoria and hospitals, $11,376,500 being expended for that purpose, or more than double the amount for 1909. The anti-tuberculosis associations spent $760,500, and the tuberculosis dispensaries $889,000. The special municipal and state expenditures aggregated $1,750,000.

The statement declares that the most significant fact in the survey of the year's work is the increase in the percentage of public money spent. While in 1909 53.5 per cent. of the total expenditure was from federal, state, municipal or county funds, 62.6 per cent. came from public appropriations in 1910. The actual amount of public money spent in tuberculosis work this past year was $9,267,900, or more than double the amount from this same source in 1909. This fact indicates, the national association declares, that anti-tuberculosis associations are gaining ground, by securing increased appropriations from public money.

Early in the afternoon Janie, her usually laughing fair face sober and thoughtful, was putting the last holiday touches to the solid beauty of the old house. From an open door she could hear her mother's gentle voice and the heavier tones of the family cook in housekeeping consultation. She had just arranged some splendid chrysanthemums to her satisfaction when her mother called her.

"Janie," she said, "your father and I are worried about Ruth. Do you know what the trouble is? You've noticed how thin and fretful she is—and her college work has been very light. In the two days she has been home she hasn't been herself at all. Sometimes a sister can get at things better than a mother. I wouldn't ask you to betray confidence, of course—but I'm anxious." Jennie, in her elder-daughterly fashion, came to put an arm about her pretty mother.

"I've noticed—and she cries at night when she thinks I'm asleep. But she hasn't told me a thing, and I haven't dared act as if I were worried. She's so offish, and declares she's perfectly well. You don't suppose it could be about—Russell? Since he's been at Harvard this year—we don't know what they may have written. I didn't say anything to you, but last fall at Nan's party Ruth did flirt awfully with Allan, and I could see Russell was furious; but they both went away in a few days, and I rather forgot it. Don't worry, mother, and I'll try to find out."

The older sister failed to find the once sparkling, happy Ruth in her room, or in the library, or anywhere about the house. Finally going on an errand to the sewing room on the third floor, she heard a queer noise and hastily opened the door. Ruth lay full length on the rug, her face hidden in her thin little hands, her dark curling hair falling about her crimson bathrobe. The slender figure was shaking with sobs. She became aware of her sister, who knelt beside her. She went on crying.

"Ruth, I will know what's wrong! You'll make yourself ill—why, child, you're burning with fever—"

"I'd like to be dead," mourned Ruth. "I'm so miserable and it isn't a thing a girl can talk about. Do go away."

"Is it about Russell?" persisted Janie. "I saw how he acted last fall. Tell me, dearie, what's been going on while you were at school. Does he write to you?"

"We had an awful quarrel—after Nan's party. He was—horrible."

"I suppose so—you acted with Allan in a way to make him horrible, if he cared. Ruth, none of us could make you two out. If you were engaged why couldn't you come out and say so? It was hardly fair, dear."

"That's just it!" flared Ruth, suddenly sitting upright on the rug. "We—I know both of us cared—awfully! But, Janie—I'm ashamed to tell even you. He never asked me right out to be engaged, and still he would not let me out of his sight. And he acted as if he owned me. I knew he was jealous of Allan, and it came over me that I had been so devoted to Russell that perhaps a little danger of losing me would make him—tell me he loved me—if he did. I was tired of being neither free nor engaged—I wouldn't have gone to college at all if I had been sure—" The girl's face burned with anger and shame.

"Well, he just wrote one horrid little note. I know I acted scandalously that night—and his last night, too. He was to take me home—and I went with Allan right under his eyes. All he said in the note was that he had a little self-respect—as well as a heart, and that he would not be played with, and when I wanted him would I please send for him! Imagine me sending for him!"

Janie gave a soft little laugh before she spoke.

"If he hadn't cared desperately he wouldn't have dared to be so rude. He came home this morning—did you see the paper? Perhaps he will come to see you. Of course he will."

Ruth shook her head.

"Constance wrote me from Cambridge that he's been simply devoted to that Sylvia White—simply devoted! I wish I didn't care—I despise myself because I do—I'm sorry I came home. I can't be natural—and I certainly don't propose to make any advances. If he does call, I shall not see him—but he won't! Oh, Janie, do you think he will?"

Janie rose and pulled her sister to her feet, and drew her down to her own room.

"Of course he will—and you will see him. The world knows how he's been at your beck and call since you were in kindergarten. And I want you to take a hot bath, lie down a while, and put on our rose-colored dress, for it's certain that some of the girls will be here before the afternoon's past. Do as I say—you'll feel better just for having talked it over. And you are largely to blame, you know."

Janie coaxed the girl to do her bidding, and after her nap fastened her into the pretty gown. She, herself, had on her street things, and prepared to go.

"Ruth, I've to do some errands for mother. She is sleeping—she's tired out. And Nellie is helping cook. Would you mind answering the telephone? There's nobody to do it until I get back. Be good. And while I'm gone think of the grand time you had at school with Orville Metcalf and several others—suppose some one wrote Russell about it? Did you think of that?"

This was a new idea. Ruth had, indeed, had the merriest of times, for all her inward heart-weariness, at the coed college where she had been so popular. She sat down in a big chair and closed her eyes, and thought what a dear sister Janie was, and how comforting it had been to speak the old trouble out. But she could never send for Russell—he would never come himself. She had not told Janie that she had answered his note with a worse one, saying that she didn't care whether she ever saw him again or not, and would certainly die before she would send for him under any circumstances. It had been a very young, angry little note—but Russell was young and angry, too. She fell into a half doze.

Presently she was aware of the doorbell, for which she was not responsible. A little later the telephone whirled and she sprang to answer it, excitedly. Suppose he should call her up? But it was only Janie. Would Ruth run to the little sitting room upstairs and see if she had left the windows open?—Janie feared that she had. That was all. Ruth went soberly along the hall, rather vexed with her sister. Nobody used that room much, and she thought the errand stupid. What had Janie been doing in there?

She opened the door, and the full blaze of the low sun struck her eyes, almost blinding her. She stood there blinking a moment, very sweet and slender and flushed in her rose dress, before she saw that a big fire burned in the fireplace, and that a man rose from a chair and came toward her.

"Ruthie—Ruthie—are you going to forgive me?"

It was Russell, but for a moment she could not understand, and then she began softly to weep, the tears falling like a child's down her cheeks. He took her into his arms, soothing and comforting her. Asking her if she did love him, whether she would not marry him—though he knew he didn't deserve it. He gave her no chance for a word until he had poured out all his heart. But as she clung to him he knew that he had his answer, even before he made her say he was forgiven.

"I was—horrid last fall, Ruthie, but it was because I was desperate. You see I had promised both my father and yours that I would not say a word to you until we had been away from each other at school a year. They wanted us to be sure—and they would not have you bound. They were right, I suppose, but it put me in a bad position. I could not have a right to you—and yet—I could not stand to have you act—so with Allan—"

Ruth pulled away from him.

"That was—hideous of me—but what could I do? Follow meekly about, letting you monopolize me—and—nothing doing? It's a horrid way to put it—but the girls all teased to know if we were engaged—and I had to show them I didn't care. You can see how it was. But—I do—I always have—cared, Russell—you know that—" Pride made no difference now.

"It was like you, Ruth, to be forgiving and call me up. I was just starting out for the house to come here, anyway, when they called me back to the 'phone. I'm sure mother thought I was insane, I was so happy and relieved—"

"What do you mean—I never called you—I wouldn't if I died—"

"No, you precious goose," said Janie impudently from the doorway. "I'm glad your voices are so much alike. My, didn't he bite! I may be a fibber, but I'm not a goose—like you two—and I have no pride, personal or family, where it's a matter of life and death. I am so glad you are out of one kind of misery—and into another! Shall I tell mother you'll stay for dinner, Russell?"

"Tell her anything—so long as you clear out, Janie. You're a nice person, but I really don't want you just now, though I do owe you thanks for two. Shut the door after you!"

Janie went, and went singing. She met her mother on the stairs, and hugged her outrageously.

"Ruthie's all right—they had a silly quarrel, and they're making it up. Russell will be here to dinner. He is still sufficiently on the earth to consent to take food!" She danced away down the hall, and the loud lifted from the mother's heart. Then she sighed—she had no wish to lose her daughter, even by a happy marriage.

How a Woman Makes Home.

"Wherever a true woman comes, home is always around her. The stars may be over her head, the glowworms in the night cold grass may be the fire at her foot, but home is where she is, and for a noble woman it stretches far around her, better than houses ceiled with cedar or painted with vermilion, shedding its quiet light for those who are homeless."—Ruskin

DIRECTIONS FOR ERECTING PRACTICAL SHEEP BUILDING

First Floor Arranged With Posts for Attaching Wire Fencing for Partitions—Lambing Pens Are in Warmest Part.

First Floor Plan.

The accompanying drawings, shown by Farm, Stock and Home, embody an excellent plan for a large sheep barn, which F. L. Marsh describes in detail as follows:

Foundation and post footings are of stone or grout. The posts strongly support the upper floor, and furnish points of attachment for wire fencing partitions. The lambing pens are in the warmest part. The remaining space may have the dimensions changed as occasion requires. Feeding racks are movable, and may form part of the partitions. Part of the light, some of the windows can be glazed, but usually doors will be open, using gates when necessary.

The second story holds much more roughage than will feed the sheep. The barn is thus suited to the frequent conditions of plenty of stable room and lack of storage for roughage, or where part of the hay is sold. Also for storing roughage to be fed out of doors. The main part has gable doors and track for hay. The "ell" has several doors, and may have hay track. It is for oat hay in bundles, shredded or bundle fodder and straw. By using the space may be used for young stock, in pens.

Windows are fitted with open sash, covered with two thicknesses of muslin. This will furnish ventilation, but may be supplemented by roof ventilators. In case there is not sufficient blower it is easily filled. Grain may be placed in second story, drawing it down to feed.

Roof has prepared roofing; sides have the same in light weight over cheap boards, or it may have a drop siding.

WINTER CARE FOR ANIMALS

Sudden Change From Pasture to Grain and Hay Feed Has Often Been Cause of Sickness Among Stock.

(By R. B. RUSHING.)

I find from experience that it is most profitable and will cause as little shrinkage as possible in the milk flow or loss of weight in the animals, interchanging from grass to grain and hay, that such changes should be gradual.

I think at least ten days or two weeks should be taken to shift the animals from their fall quarters of grass to winter quarters of grain and hay. I too often see animals out in the pasture until very late in the fall and receive very little attention if any till some stormy time comes and then they are hustled into the barn and fed lots of feed which is pitched to them any way and usually the consequence is some sick, and perhaps dead stock. This is not profitable.

Very often during the season when the animals are to be changed the pasture is rather short and sometimes tough, while if the fall rains have been plentiful, the grass may be in fairly good condition but if the animals are allowed access to a rack full of good sweet hay they will begin eating the hay even while the pasture is quite good.

In this way the animals will become accustomed to the change gradually and there will be no danger when put on dry feed.

I think one of the best feeds to be given immediately after removing from pasture is some kind of roots, turnips or beets which may be fed at this season of the year to the best advantage and will assist the animals in getting to the corn and hay.

In feeding forage at this season of the year it should be of the very best quality as the animals must be tempted with rations of the very best kind.

When there is some old hay in the barn do not feed it now. It will come better during the cold weather when the animals naturally have a good appetite and are well accustomed to dry food.

Animals should be kept out of doors as much as possible and should be stabled only when the weather is bad. In fair weather never stable stock unless it is very cold as they like to be out in the open air and it is better for them than being shut up in the stables. But, when they are in the stables and the weather is not too severe see to it that the windows are open so as to have an abundance of ventilation.

In the early winter the animals will suffer more from close confinement than from too much ventilation.

When changing from grass to dry food allow the animals as much liberty as possible in the yards about the barn, only putting them in the barn at milking time and during the bad weather, until they become thoroughly accustomed to the new conditions.

Animals on pasture naturally take exercise. In grazing they will walk miles. The change from this condition to a narrow stall is rather severe and due consideration should be given in allowing them at this time as much freedom and open air while changing the feed as possible.

Itching Skin.

It is said that in case of itching skin the horse should be clipped and the grain ration cut down one-half. No corn should be fed. The animal will do best on oats, bran and hay. Green grass often leads to itchiness of the skin. After clipping apply to the itching parts, as required, a mixture of one dram each of diluted sulphuric acid and carbolic acid in a pint of water. A little menthol added is effective where itching is excessive. Wash the affected parts before first application of medicine is made. Should the trouble continue, give a tablespoonful twice daily of a mixture of equal parts of powdered wood charcoal and granulated hyposulphate of soda.

Cattle in Argentina.

The Argentine Republic is a great cattle producing country. In 1909, no fewer than 130,000 head were exported. A great amount of frozen meat and chilled meat is shipped.

HOME TOWN HELPS

VALUE OF CITY BEAUTIFUL

Aside From Aesthetic, Commercial Benefits Are of the Greatest Importance.

In the recent city planting congress in London reasons enough were given for the beautifying of towns. One, however, and an important one, was not, we believe, mentioned. This is the commercial benefit which accrues to a city which has become famous for the beauty of its buildings, the vistas unfolded by its streets, its public parks and gardens. For ages Paris has been known as the playground of the civilized world. Not only have countless thousands visited it for its ancient palaces, its storehouses of art treasures, and its historic associations, but because of the more modern beauties of its architecture, its boulevards and its parks and pleasure grounds. But many of the ancient buildings which delighted the eye of the artist have had to give way to the march of progress and the needs of today. So Paris is trying to beautify its modern features that some of its landmarks of the past will not be missed.

So strongly do the Parisians believe in city beautification as an investment that the municipality has been authorized to borrow $175,000,000 for this purpose. A part of this, $47,000,000, has just been raised by an issue of bonds, which, in spite of labor difficulties and other obstacles, was oversubscribed twenty times. At least two leading thoroughfares are to be greatly extended, new parks established and new government buildings erected.

In America the chief opposition to improvements of this sort are likely to come from the classes which would most be benefited by them. Chicago's chief claim on visitors is its system of parks and boulevards. There is no telling how many of our guests are attracted by these splendid driveways and pleasure grounds. The Chicago plan, which commercially may be looked upon as an expensive dream of visionaries, would, if carried out, be the city's chief asset. Not only would it conduce to immeasurable benefit and delight to those who live here, but it would attract millions of people from elsewhere, and these indirectly would help pay for its cost and maintenance. —Chicago Tribune.

TRUTH ABOUT THE SUBURB

In Theory They Should Be Well Governed, But Frequently They Have Their Troubles.

In theory, small cities and big villages which are composed largely of the residences of men who do business and earn their living in a great urban center which carries along and sustains these suburbs, ought to be models of good government. They should be very efficiently guarded, supplied with whatever necessities local officials are expected to provide, and kept clean, well paved, well regulated and contented.

Such communities are not too big for wide-awake citizens to watch their public business closely. They are free from many difficulties which great cities must face, in the nature of their industries and commercial interests and the mixed character of their population. In theory, the suburbs have all the better of such comparisons with their big neighbors.

The practical tests of experience do not work out that way. Suburbs are often full of troubles. They have more than their share of wrangling and bitterness and discontent, in politics and government. Often the local administration in such municipalities is costly, extravagant and inefficient.

Many great cities have seen their growth promoted and their legal limits enlarged, time and again, by the desire of suburbs to have better local government than they seem able to get for themselves. They join great cities to improve extremely unsatisfactory conditions.

Necessity for City Parks.

"It is a sin boarding on a crime," says a writer in Cassier's, "to continue to construct cities extending over miles of territory in dense formation, without incorporating effective means for cutting off the course of a conflagration after it has escaped ordinary bounds and restraint.

"Cities should be divided into sections not exceeding one mile square by parks and wide parkways. These will not only serve as fire barriers but will add greatly to the health, comfort and happiness of the people and the beauty of the city. This system provides a break in the continuity of the building mass, thus making it practically impossible for a conflagration to spread over miles of territory before checked.

"It would be much easier to stop a fire at the parks and parkways than in a solid mass of buildings. The cutting down of trees and shrubbery would be much easier, safer and more effective than the destroying a line of buildings, and the loss of a mile or two of the parkway's adornment would be a trifling matter in comparison with the loss which would be caused by the destruction of an equal area of buildings.

Will Give It a Trial.

A large number of the stores of the city have been closing at 6 o'clock in the evening but heretofore the hardware stores have not joined the movement. They have finally reached an agreement and during the month of February will give the plan a trial. The Cordes Hardware Company, The Union Hardware Company, Stanfield & Carlson and the Kessler Hardware Company have joined the movement.

GROUND HOG DAY

Little Animal Certainly Had no Difficulty in Finding Shadow.

If there is any thing in the old tradition of groundhog day there will be six more weeks of winter weather, as the little animal certainly had no trouble in finding his shadow today when he emerged from his hole. According to the belief regarding the ground hog winter will continue for six weeks should the animal see his shadow for he would return to his hole and remain for that length of time.

For years there was a difference of opinion just what date was Groundhog Day, some contending February 1 was the proper date, while others insisted February 2 was the anniversary of his hogship's appearance.

When P. L. D. Mitchell of Bloomington represented Monroe county in the Legislature in 1876, he introduced a bill in the House designating February 2 as Groundhog Day. The bill passed with a whoop and it was rushed to the Senate, where by a strict party vote, it was killed. Mitchell was a Democrat and made a speech in the House denouncing the Senate as a body of ignorant "hill-billies" for defeating his pet measure.

Still Dissatisfied.

The more they think about the matter the more dissatisfied are the citizens of Brownstown with the census report which gave the town a population of 1,492 as against 1,685 ten years ago. During the past few days figures have been compiled by some of the people there which show that about 75 new residences have been built in the town in the past ten years. Much of the town lying between the old town of Brownstown and Ewing has been built during that time. One or two factories have also been added to the list of the town's industries.

Seymour has stood up and counted herself and she finds that she amounts to 7,039 and is 594 bigger than the official counters of Uncle Sam made her at the recent census. After the B. & O. S-W. removes its offices there, she is going to do up her hair and have rats and things. She would also don hobble skirts—only she is too full of bustle for that.—Scott County Journal.

WORK ON BIG DITCH

In Northern Scott County to Begin Soon.—Machinery Arriving.

Work will begin soon on the big ditch or canal which is designed to drain a large section of country in the northern part of Scott county by straightening Stucker Creek. Hundreds of acres in that territory which have been depreciated in value by the frequent destruction of crops by floods will it is expected double in price when the ditch is completed. Already prices of land there are advancing.

The Daniels Lyst Company of Anderson which has the contract for the work has already shipped several car loads of equipment to Scottsburg and it is being transported to the point where digging will begin about a mile and a half northeast of Scottsburg. Much of the machinery is massive and it is expected the contractors will be able to make rapid headway when they get started. The Scottsburg Journal says:

Montgomery Bros. have under construction at their machine shops, a rather curious craft for the use of the Daniels-Lyst people. It consists of two boats exactly alike, long narrow and deep, lashed firmly together about a foot apart. The propeller, driven by gasoline power, will work between the two boats. This will be used to tow the coal barges to where fuel is needed for the steam dredge.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING

For the Old People?

It may be your father, your mother, your grandfather or your grandmother who is very dear to you, but it is sad to see them lose their interest in life because their strength is fast ebbing away and they seem doomed to the weak, feeble and decrepit condition of the aged.

Now is the time for you to come to their assistance.

Call at our store and get a bottle of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, without oil, and see what a change it will make in your dear ones.

A case is recorded in Litchfield, Ill., of a man 72 years of age who seemed to be getting old and feeble, suffered from indigestion and a nervous trouble. His druggist asked him to try Vinol at his risk. He did and says he is better and feels younger than he has for fifteen years.

We wish every feeble aged person would try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that their money will be returned if it does not give perfect satisfaction. The Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Indiana Man Got Religion and Destroyed Crop and Lodge Pins.

Brookville, Ind., Feb. 2.—Great religious fervor has marked a revival meeting at Buena Vista. Exhortations have been followed by trances and delirious shouting. One farmer, Howard Jackson, raised a crop of fine tobacco last season, but after being converted he decided that the use of tobacco was inconsistent with religion. He employed help, built a pyre and dramatically burned the crop. When the flames were hottest, he threw his lodge pins into the fire and renounced the orders.

WANT UNIFORM SCALE

Thrasherman Want Uniform Price of 5 cents per Bushel.

Thrasherman in Indiana are desirous of a uniform scale of pay for threshing wheat. At the present time prices varying from 1½c to 5c per bushel are paid, and they say that they would prefer a uniform price of five cents. In this county the farmers pay from 2 to 4 cents per bushel.

Many of the members of the Thrasherman Organization threatened, if objections are raised by farmers to the increase in price, to leave their thrashing machinery in storage and refuse to assist in marketing the grain in their respective localities. They said by such an action they could prove the valuable service they give the farmer each year and could convince landowners of the importance of their work in assisting to properly market a product of the soil which is worth millions of dollars to the state annually. It is the present plan to effect the increased rates by organizing the thrashers of each county and to make the movement state wide through the Indiana Brotherhood of Thrashermen.

The organization would also like a law which would give them the right to drive their engines through cities and towns without the interference which is now experienced from some of the city officials.

Fanny Kemble's Quick Wit.

Fanny Kemble had a fiery temper, which matched that of her husband, Pierce Butler, and speedily brought about one of the most noted divorce trials reported in the lawbooks. In her youth she was remarkably beautiful, and in the role of Juliet she was the personification of dazzling loveliness. She was noted for her keenness of wit even in the days of her old age. Once when an impertinent street loafer stepped up to her while she was looking in the window of a bric-a-brac store and said, "Are you fond of antiquities?" Mrs. Kemble quickly unpinned her veil and, turning on the man her aged face (she was then seventy-three), asked, "Are you?"

President's Tribute to Wife

General Arthur Felt Little Satisfaction in Occupying the White House Because His Loved Helpmate was Gone.

When Chester A. Arthur became president of the United States his first official residence was in the Washington house of Senator John P. Jones of Nevada. This was due to the fact that the White House had to undergo a long period of renovation following President Garfield's removal thence to the seashore, and it was not until late in the autumn of 1881 that General Arthur was able to take up his residence in the nation's home for its presidents. In the meantime he was provided with a suitable roof through the thoughtfulness and hospitality of Senator Jones.

"I know that it was with no feeling of pride or exultation that Chester A. Arthur finally entered the White House as president," said General Howard Carroll, a former member of congress from New York City and for years one of General Arthur's intimate personal and political friends. "He was bowed down with regret over the Garfield tragedy, for one thing; and then, notwithstanding his political activity, he was a lonely man. His little daughter was away at school, his son was at college, and his wife had been dead several years when he was elected vice president.

"General Arthur and his wife had been much attached to each other; their domestic relations were ideal. Mrs. Arthur was a beautiful woman of many accomplishments, and she and her husband had many tastes in common. Both were fond of music; Mrs. Arthur had a very charming and highly cultivated voice, which, had she chosen a professional career for herself, probably would have brought her considerable fame. And both were very fond of literature. Although the public did not know it, President Arthur was of scholarly attainments. He was a constant reader of the classics, he spoke German very well, and he read that language with facility.

"One morning about a week after the president had moved into the White House I had occasion to call there. As I was compelled to leave for New York on a mid-forenoon train, I timed my call so as to reach the White House just after the president had finished breakfast. But when I asked for him his valet, Powell, told me that the president was dressing. I therefore sent word that I would wait until he could receive me, but in a few moments I was asked to go to the president's dressing room, and there we conversed about the business that had called me to the White House.

"While the talk was going on I noted the appropriate manner in which the president's private apartment had been fitted up, and after the business in hand was out of the way I commented on the furnishings and decorations, venturing to say that, now that he was at last in the White House, he must have some sense of pride in the fact that he was president of the United States; that he must have some concrete idea of what it all meant to be the head of so great a country.

"For a moment General Arthur did not answer me. Then, slowly, he turned and stood looking at a portrait which hung upon the wall. It was a splendid likeness of Mrs. Arthur, and it was the one domestic adornment of his New York house which he had insisted on bringing to Washington with him, and hanging where, in his private moments, he could easily look at it.

"For several minutes he gazed lovingly, longingly, at the picture. Then he turned to me:

"Howard," he said, slowly, simply and yet impressively, 'you say it is a great thing to be president and occupy the White House. But I have felt every moment that I have been here, as I have looked upon the portrait of my wife, how much meaning there is in the poem of Heine's you know so well. Ah,

"What for me is all the blooming If I bloom myself alone."

he repeated, in German, looking tenderly at the portrait of Mrs. Arthur, while a tone of infinite tenderness came into his voice. Then, a moment later, he added:

"Howard, that is the way I feel and have felt ever since I entered the White House. And that is the way I will feel until I depart from it."

Possibly a Good Bargain.

"In some parts of Africa," dilated the returned explorer, "one can buy a wife for half a pint of common glass beads."

"Well," replied the fussy old bachelor, "no doubt a good wife is worth that much."—Lippincott's.

A Helpful Dame.

"We owe a duty to the proletariat."

"Well?"

"I propose devoting some of my afternoons to teaching poor girls the rudiments of bridge whist."

An Unsolved Political Enigma

Only One Man Now Living Can Tell Name of Republican Who Persuaded President Garfield to Make Judge Robertson Collector.

There is probably only one man now living who is able to give authoritatively the name of the Republican who persuaded President Garfield, in March, 1881, to nominate Judge William H. Robertson collector of the port of New York—a nomination that brought about the dramatic joint resignation of Roscoe Conkling and Thomas C. Platt from the United States senate, and, in the opinion of many, the defeat of James G. Blaine as the Republican presidential nominee in 1884. The one man is J. Stanley Brown, who was private secretary to President Garfield, and who married the president's only daughter, Mr. Brown, however, will never tell, unless posthumously. He regards himself as under obligations to reveal none of the secret history of the Garfield administration.

I have been asked many times who it was that recommended to Garfield the appointment of Judge Robertson, and could only say that in Washington, at the time the appointment was made, no one was found, excepting Mr. Brown, who could answer the question. Yet, it is probable that the late John H. Starin, who was in congress with Garfield and was a close friend of the latter, knew; and I base this statement on a conversation I had with Mr. Starin several years after Garfield's death.

"Mr. Starin," I said, "did you ever know that it was suggested to President Garfield, after the resignations of Senators Conkling and Platt and the confirmation by the senate of Judge Robertson as collector of the port of New York, that an ideal way out of the difficulty would have been the appointment of you as the collector of the port of New York and the nomination of Judge Robertson as United States district attorney?"

"No, I never heard that," Mr. Starin replied. "Garfield and I were always warm personal friends. My seat, when I was in congress, was next to him. When I found that General Grant could not be nominated for president in 1880, I was very much pleased when General Garfield was. But I never heard that anybody had said to him what you now repeat to me."

"Well," I replied, "President Garfield was told that if he had appointed you collector of the port the entire factional trouble between the Stalwarts and the Half-breeds would have ended, and when he heard this he was silent for a moment and then replied: 'I never thought of Starin; I wish I had.'"

"That was an extraordinary, I believe unequalled, irony of fate," said Mr. Starin. "See all the consequences it has led to. For one thing, it undoubtedly paved the way for the election of Grover Cleveland as president. 'I have sometimes heard it said that General Garfield was persuaded by Blaine to nominate Judge Robertson for collector. Blaine, I know, felt very grateful to Robertson, because Robertson, through his leadership of the bolt in the New York delegation at the convention of 1880, prevented the nomination of Grant.

"But if Blaine did urge that nomination it was a fatal mistake for him to make. You may remember that, although there were several incidents which caused Blaine to lose the electoral vote of the state of New York in 1884, yet the chief cause of his defeat was the knifing of him by the friends of Senator Conkling in the Utica (New York) district.

"These friends were firmly persuaded that it was Blaine who induced Garfield to nominate Robertson for collector of the port. They bided their time, and when Blaine became the Republican candidate for president, they determined to show their resentment at the polls. Had Blaine received the normal Republican vote in Oneida county, New York, he would have obtained the electoral vote of New York state. Therefore, in the nomination of Judge Robertson for collector of the port lay the real cause for the defeat of Blaine for president in 1884—and I happen to know that Judge Robertson was ambitious solely to be appointed United States district attorney, an office without much political power."

And J. Stanley Brown is the only living man who knows whether or not it be true that Blaine persuaded Garfield to nominate Judge Robertson for collector of the port of New York. (Copyright, 1910, by E. J. Edwards. All Rights Reserved.)

LESSON LEARNED FROM LIFE

It is to Give Good Measure of All Things, and Demand but Little In Return.

"Life," said a courageous soul, nearing the end of a beautiful career—"life resolves itself finally into just what you can make of yourself. It has really very little to do with conditions or events." This saying carried the more weight with those who heard it because it came from one who, despite continual outer thwartings, spread sunshine and courage incalculable wherever she came. Not what she could get out of life, but what she could put into it, concerned her—and the measure of what she found to add to mere living brimmed over.

There is yet another rule of great value to apply to life when it seems most difficult. It is to give good measure of all desirable things, and demand but little. Modest demands—social, financial, domestic—help to solve the problem of content. Do you chance to remember the final paragraph in Tolstol's "Anna Karenina"? Levin, who records it, had found it difficult to supply himself with a reason for being; and after thought, study and experience, he gives us this solution: "My inner life has won its liberty; it will no longer be at the mercy of events, and every minute of my existence will have a meaning sure and profound, which it will be in my power to impress upon every single one of my actions—that of being good." If these words set down here sound trite and childish, read in connection with the whole great novel—one of the greatest of the last century—they have profound value.—Harper's Weekly.

WOMEN HAVE STRONGER EYES

Records Show That the Gentle Sex Have Better Sight Than the Men.

Expert ophthalmologists, such as have records of thousands of cases of more or less defective vision, agree that the eye of the woman is no more near sighted, and no more far sighted, than that of man. Physically the two sexes are on exactly the same level throughout the whole structural condition of their eyes.

But there are records—disputed, it is true, as being incomplete—which show that men are twenty times as liable to color blindness as women; the averages show two women out of every thousand color blind, where there are forty men found wanting on that score. The critics of those records contend that men, being examined far more numerous for color blindness by reason of their callings, are much more liable to have the defect revealed.

The Brief Proclamation.

When F. F. Low was governor of California, there lived and flourished a lobbyist named Nap Broughton, who was equally noted as a wit and as a stutterm. Going down the street one day in November Governor Low saw Broughton carrying home a turkey.

"Ah, Nap, you're taking advantage of my Thanksgiving day proclamation," was the greeting which the governor extended to him. "By the way, he added, "wasn't that a pretty good proclamation?"

"No-o, t-t-t-toe long," said Nap with some effort.

"That's funny," said the surprised governor. "Why, I prided myself especially on the brevity of the proclamation. I don't see how I could have made it shorter."

"All you n-n-needed to say was p-p-praise G-g-god from whom all b-b-blessings P-P-F-Low."—Ex-Governor Pardee of California in New York World.

First Find of Gold in America.

North America has counted as a gold-producing continent only since the late forties. But it might well have done so for nearly two hundred years. According to the history searchers, in the voyage round the world which Pagan in 1719, the privateer, Capt. Shelvocke, found in certain California valleys "a rich black mold which, as you turn it fresh up to the sun, appears as if intermingled with gold dust." "Though we were a little prejudiced," he adds, "against the thought that it could be possible that this metal should be so promiscuously and universally mingled with common earth, yet we endeavored to cleanse and wash the earth from some of it, and the more we did the more it appeared like gold. In order to be further satisfied I brought away some of it, which was lost in our confusion in China."

What Will He Do With It?

A souse wandered into a downtown barber's shop and after being shaved sat down in the bootblack's chair.

"How do you get paid? Wages?" he asked.

"No, suh," answered the bootblack. "I work on a pubcentage—60 percent's mine."

"Shickshty p'cent, yours," said the souse, deliberately. "Shickshty p'cent."

"Yes, suh."

"Fyoo take in hundred dollars you keep shickshty?"

"Yes, suh."

"Fyoo take in thousan, you keep shicksht hundred."

"An' hundred thousan, you keep shickshty thousan?"

"Yes, suh."

"My, my," said the souse in puzzled manner, "what're you goin' t' do with so much money?"—Cleveland Press.

WAITING FOR TROUBLE.

How long would they have to wait for a kiss if you were there, dear boy?

STUBBORN ECZEMA ON HANDS

"Some nine years ago I noticed small pimples breaking out on the back of my hands. They became very irritating, and gradually became worse, so that I could not sleep at night. I consulted a physician who treated me a long time, but it got worse, and I could not put my hands in water. I was treated at the hospital, and it was just the same. I was told that it was a very bad case of eczema. Well, I just kept on using everything that I could for nearly eight years until I was advised to try Cuticura Ointment. I did so, and I found after a few applications and by bandaging my hands well up that the burning sensations were disappearing. I could sleep well, and did not have any itching during the night. I began after a while to use Cuticura Soap for a wash for them, and I think by using the Soap and Ointment I was much benefited. I stuck to the Cuticura treatment, and thought if I could use other remedies for over seven years with no result, and after only having a few applications and finding ease from Cuticura Ointment, I thought it deserved a fair trial with a severe and stubborn case. I used the Ointment and Soap for nearly six months, and I am glad to say that I have hands as clear as anyone.

"It is my wish that you publish this letter to all the world, and if anyone doubts it, let them write me and I will give them the name of my physician, also the hospital I was treated at." (Signed) Miss Mary A. Bentley, 93 University St., Montreal, Que., Sept. 14, 1910.

A Christmas Criticism.

Orville Wright, discussing flying in New York, said to a reporter: "The French claim to make the best machines, but our foreign order books tell a different story.

"Our foreign order books give the game away like the little Dayton boy at the Christmas treat. He got from the tree at this treat a pair of trousers, and, waving them around his head, he electrified the entire Sunday school by shouting in a loud and joyous voice:

"Oh, ma, these pants must be new. Pa never had a suit like that."

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medicinal forest plants. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

CONSTIPATION

Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour; they do not gripe; they do not weaken; but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation.

These pills contain no calomel, no dope, they are soothing, healing and stimulating. They school the bowels to act without physic. Price 25 cents.

44 Bu. to the Acre is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 44-45 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 331-8 bu. per acre, 25,8 and 40 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

The Silver Cup at the recent Spokane Fair was awarded to the Alberta government for its exhibit of grains, grasses and vegetables. Reports of excellent yields for 1910 come also from Saskatchewan and Manitoba in Western Canada.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emption of 160 acres (at $3 per acre) are to be had in the choicest districts. SOME TIMELY RECIPES

NEW THINGS IT WILL PAY COOK TO TRY.

Lemon Rice and Russian Lemon Pie
Formulas Make Mouth Water to Read Them—Butter Scotch and Pepper Sauce.

Lemon Pie.—There are many different rules for making lemon pies, two of which I will give. For the first beat to a cream a tablespoonful butter and one cupful sugar. Put into a saucepan with a scant cupful boiling water, then add the juice and grated yellow rind of two lemons. When it reaches the boiling point stir in a tablespoonful corn starch dissolved in a little cold water and stir and cook until clear and thickened. Have ready the well beaten yolks of two eggs, stir in, cook a moment longer, then take at once from the fire. Pour into a well baked crust and spread over it, heaping lightly, a meringue made from the whipped whites of two eggs and two tablespoonfuls powdered or fine granulated sugar. Set in the oven, which should be quite cool, and let the meringue gradually puff and color.

Russian Lemon Pie.—Beat together one cupful sugar and one egg. Put over the fire, in a double boiler, three-fourths cup water and a teaspoonful lemon juice. When boiling add sugar and eggs, the grated yellow peel of two lemons and a soda cracker rolled fine. Wet two tablespoonfuls flour with a quarter cupful cold water and add to the other ingredients. Lastly, stir in a large cupful seeded and chopped raisins. Line two small pie tins or one large pie tin with pastry, pour in the lemon mixture, put on an upper crust and bake for about thirty-five minutes.

Butter Scotch.—Boil together one cupful each sugar and molasses, one-half cupful butter, a tablespoonful vinegar and a quarter teaspoonful soda. Stir frequently to prevent burning and as soon as the sirup reaches the snap stage when dropped in cold water take from the fire and flavor to taste. Pour upon a buttered tin in a sheet one-quarter of an inch thick and when nearly cold check it off into squares, using a sharp knife. Separate when cold and wrap each square in paraffin paper.

Pepper Sauce.—Grind one dozen and a half green, red and yellow peppers and a small solid head of cabbage in a meat chopper. They should be very fine. Add 5 cents' worth each celery seed and ground mustard with vinegar to make the consistency of catsup. This goes well with meats.

The Home

If hooks for the bathroom, kitchen and pantry are dipped in enamel paint there will be no trouble from iron rust.

Having several pairs of shoes and never wearing the same pair more than one or two days at a time will rest the leather and make it last better. Chamois leather should be washed, when necessary, in soapsuds, and rinsed in soapsuds—not in clear water. Treated thus it will keep its original softness.

Any dish that has held dough, milk, cream or eggs should be rinsed in cold water before being placed in hot water, as hot water tends to cook such things and make them more difficult to remove.

Purée of Lima Bean Soup.

Soak one pint of lima beans over night in cold water and in the morning boil in water until soft. If the water boils away very much add a little milk or water. Sift closely and add salt, pepper and cayenne to taste. If you like add a little onion juice. Melt one tablespoon of butter and rub into it until it is perfectly smooth one tablespoon of flour. Pour on this one cup of boiling water and stir hard. Stir the two mixtures together. Slice two or three tomatoes very thin and put in the soup. It will be ready to serve as it boils.

Tomato Purée.

One can tomatoes, two carrots, cut in slices; one-half bay leaf, one stalk celery, four sprigs parsley, two cloves, two onions, four tablespoonfuls butter, four tablespoonfuls flour, one tablespoonful salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Put tomatoes, spices, parsley and herbs into a small kettle and cook until the tomatoes are thick and rather dark. Melt the butter, add flour and seasonings, then the tomatoes gradually, strain and reheat. Serve on omelets or meats or fish.

Useful Tip.

For those who have to do much household work this hint will be useful. Before putting the hands into soda water rub the finger-tips and round the nails with vaseline. The water will not then touch them and make them crack.

CANNOT DO ANY DAMAGE

Housewives Will See at a Glance the Valuable Qualities of this New Mop.

A simple and effective form of mop has been designed by a Pennsylvanian. Its chief advantage lies in the absence of springs, bails, levers, heads or other parts of metal framework, which have been known to rust, get out of repair and scratch polished surfaces. The mop is made in two detachable parts—the mop proper and the handle, which is equipped with a hook at one end and a flaring piece that is also detachable. To put this apparatus together the hook is run through the ring on the mop and the loose metal cap is drawn down over the top, compressing the upper portion of the strands so that they can be drawn up into the hollow end of the handle. In this way there are no protruding metal parts and the device may be used with safety on parquet floors or any polished surfaces which might otherwise be marred by the contact of anything but the soft mop itself. The whole affair is very light and is easy to manipulate.

MEAT STEW WITH DUMPLINGS

Delicious Dinner Dish Designed to Appeal to Those Seeking Change in Bill of Fare.

Ingredients: Five pounds of a cheaper cut of beef, four cups of potatoes cut into small pieces, two-thirds cup each of turnips and carrots cut into one-half inch cubes, one-half onion, chopped, one-fourth cup of flour, salt and pepper.

Cut the meat into small pieces, removing the fat; try out the fat and brown the meat in it. When well browned, cover with boiling water, boil for five minutes and then cook in a lower temperature until the meat is done. If tender, this will require about three hours on the stove or five hours in the fireless cooker. Add carrots, turnips, onions, pepper, and salt during the last hour of cooking, and the potatoes 15 minutes before serving. Thicken with the flour with cold water. Serve with dumplings. If this dish is made in the fireless cooker the mixture must be reheated when the vegetables are put in. Such a stew may also be made of mutton. If veal or pork is used the vegetables may be omitted or simply a little onion used. Some times for variety the browning of the meat is dispensed with. When white meat such as chicken, veal or fresh pork is used, the gravy is often made rich with cream or milk thickened with flour. The numerous minor additions which may be introduced give the great variety of such stews found in cook books.

English Raisin Bread.

Two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, four tablespoons flour, one tablespoon (hard) one-half cup sugar, one-half cup raisins, one-half cup currants, nutmeg grating, one egg, milk to make soft dough (about one cup). Mix and sift the flour, baking powder, salt, sugar and nutmeg twice, chop in fat till very fine. Add the beaten egg to one-half cup milk and mix lightly, with flour and fat, to soft dough. Add the raisins and currants which have been well washed, dried and lightly floured. Bake in buttered loaf pan 40 minutes in a moderate oven.

Two Cleansers.

Boiled potatoes are an excellent substitute for soap when the hands have become soiled by contact with blackened pots and pans. Potato water should, besides, be kept for renovating silk.

Although vinegar may be used to clean the outside of copper cooking utensils, care should be taken to avoid letting any fall on the tin lining of the pan. To clean the pan inside and out, far the best method is to scrub it with soda, hot water and soap. The outside may then be polished with a rag dipped in vinegar.

Cinnamon Jibb.

Place in a saucepan one cupful of brown sugar and one-half cupful of golden corn syrup, and one-fourth cupful of butter, two teaspoonfuls of ground cinnamon and one-half cupful of water. Boil until it forms a hard ball when dropped into cold water. Pour into buttered pans and when nearly cold cut into squares.

Sweet Potatoes.

Boil them until half done, then peel and split them once, take a tin dish and lay them in, sprinkle thick with sugar and a little pepper, plenty of butter, place in the oven and finish cooking.

FLAX IS PROFITABLE

Wonderful Paying Proposition in Western Canadian Prairies.

So much is heard of the wheat, oats and barley grown in the prairie lands of western Canada, and so much has been told of the wealth to be made out of the raising of cattle on the succulent and rich grasses of those fertile plains, that a most important product has been almost lost sight of, Flax. Recent press reports advise us that on one of the last boats to clear from Fort William (at the head of Lake Superior) for Buffalo, there were 241,000 bushels of flax valued at $583,220, and on another boat leaving the same day there were 288,000 bushels valued at $720,000. There has been a big demand for Canadian flax this season, and the lake movement has been very heavy. Flax is always a sure crop, and gives to the farmer who is anxious for quick return after getting on his land, the chance he is looking for. There is opportunity for thousands yet, on the free homesteads of 160 acres, and many of these are available within short distance of the lines of railway that are already built or under construction, either on the main line or branches. Besides these free grant lands there is an opportunity to purchase from railway and land companies at reasonable prices.

The display of western Canada's grains in the straw as well as threshed grains and grasses recently made at St. Louis was an excellent demonstration of what the country can do. It proved splendid as an illustration of the resources of that vast prairie country, which during the past year has again proven its ability to produce excellent yields of wheat, oats and barley—and flax. Not only this, but the splendid herds of cattle are a source of large revenue. There is a fund of information to be had by reading the Canadian government literature, copies of which may be had free by applying to your nearest Canadian government agent.

Bo'sun and Sir John Fisher.

Admiral Potter told a new one on Sir John Fisher. When Sir John was at the head of the British admiralty he was most inaccessible. One day an old boatswain appeared. He would not take "no" for an answer. Finally a secretary went into Sir John's office, leaving the door ajar. He told the admiral that a sailor demanded an interview.

"Tell him to go to hell," roared Sir John.

"Aye, aye, sir," piped the boatswain, who stood in the doorway at a respectful salute; "I know I'll meet you there, sir, but I want to talk to you now, too."

"Yes, sir, I do, and Angie does," said Horatio in distinctly resentful tones, "and mother told us that she was afraid the last she made, wasn't quite up to the mark, and if you didn't praise it, Angie and I could have it for luncheon on our bread, for Mrs. Willis and Mrs. Shedd never said a word when they ate it, and you've made the third; but now she'll use it for the church sociables," and Horatio looked gloomily at his twin, who returned the look in kind.—Youth's Companion.

Great Bargain in Perfectly Equipped Manufacturing Plant

Owing to contingencies in our manufacturing operation, we are forced to move our works to another city and offer at a great sacrifice the above plant consisting of three large buildings and a shed. The main building and engine room is 50x175, the stock shipping room 35x100, the foundry 25x30 and the second story of the main building is 50x25 and is used as an office, there is also a shed 25x40 and the ground includes four acres. There are two boilers 40 H. P. Atlas make, one 25 H. P. steam engine and one 25 H. P. gas engine and one deep well pump, one well and pump for drinking purposes and one steam pump for filling the boilers.

TRANSPORTATION The rear of the property rests on main line of Big Four Ry. and the front on the Union Traction Interurban line Anderson and Indianapolis, thus insuring freight and passenger transit.

LABOR is cheap and can be had for 12c per hour and disturbances are rare. This property has been expended on it during the past year $14,000, and is in perfect condition, can now be bought at a great bargain. It is particularly suitable for small manufacturing. Write at once for prices and terms as this is a desirable offering and will not be long on the market.

Dynamite Explosion Gives New York City a Shaking.

THOUGHT IT WAS CRACK O'DOOM

Forty Tons of Dynamite on a Pier on Jersey Water Front Let Go With a Bang That Shook City and Brought Down Window Glass in the Skyscrapers—It Is Thought at Least Twenty-Five Were Killed.

New York, Feb. 2.—Five million people were affected as by an earthquake when forty tons of dynamite exploded on the Jersey water front.

Radiating from the North river end of pier seven in the Jersey Central's freight terminal in Communipaw, the concussion rocked Manhattan from end to end. Jersey trembled for many miles back of the marshes. Away out in Long Island people started up in trembling buildings and thought it was an earthquake. Everywhere the solid skyscrapers vibrated and spilled window glass into the streets.

In the immediate neighborhood of the explosion the destruction was so complete that it is impossible to determine the number killed or the precise reason a carload of giant powder and a quantity stored in two lighters let go. It is likely that thirty men lost their lives and that twenty-five of these were blown to pieces near the pier end.

It was several minutes before the railroad men in the terminal understood exactly what had occurred. Their first business had been to save their heads for the glass roofs of their buildings were falling on them and planks ripped loose from their piers had been flying past their heads. After they had climbed out of the heaped-up debris their next business was to care for the commuters who were running about aimlessly with blood running from glass cuts on cheek and head, and for their own men who had been injured in the upheaval of glass and iron and splinters.

Trainmen running along the piers and jumping over twisted rails and between shattered box cars to make a way, looked out toward the end of pier seven and saw that 200 feet of the solid pile-set pier had been bitten short off, so that the splintered edges of beams projected over the black water; that a whole car of dynamite had vanished along with the pier end; that another car containing cases of dynamite sticks had been ripped to pieces, spilling dynamite over the debris; that two lighters, the Katherine W. and the Whistler, that had been taking on dynamite for the Dupont De Nemours company, were gone, and that the ships and lighters and barges laid up by piers to the north were piled with wreckage and that wherever their eyes traveled along the water front of the terminal was nothing but wreckage and an inextricable confusion of wood and iron and merchandise.

There was not a spark of fire anywhere, for the reason, perhaps, that the dynamite had spent its greatest force riverward and hurled embers either into the river or onto the iron decks of ships and lighters.

All the way up through the terminal from the riverside were men lying against box cars or sitting somewhere in the wreckage feeling out their own injuries. Nineteen out of twenty, possibly, were bleeding from gashes in the face or head caused by a shower of splintered glass from far on high. Up in the trainshed and waiting room of the Jersey Central depot, about a thousand yards from where the dynamite let go, there were scores who were cut deeply or groaned from broken bones or lay weak and helpless from the shock that had come upon them so amazingly. And so the ambulances made trip after trip, carrying folks to the hospitals. About fifty were brought over to Manhattan. A hundred were taken to the three Jersey City hospitals. Astonishingly few were seriously hurt.

Enumerating the dead was a puzzle that the authorities gave up until such definite information as the names and whereabouts of the Polacks who had been loading dynamite cases on the lighter Katherine W. and the lighter Whistler, and the names and whereabouts of the crews of the lighters had been obtained. There were fragments of bodies here and there—a leg and an arm high up in the rigging of a wrecked Norwegian ship; a dead man in the hold of the same ship; a shattered torso among the coal piles on pier nine. But there were twenty-five men squarely at the center of the explosion, and not a trace of them save the three mangled bodies was found. Three-quarters of a mile away at the Toothpick pier, the captain of the tugboat Tuohy was blown through his pilot-house and killed, which made up the number of dead positively known as four.

There was hardly any doubt in the minds of the railroad men after they had talked with the barge skippers and the dock workers, some of whom had been less than 200 yards away from the dynamite car, that all of the twenty-five had been destroyed.

A passenger train on the railway from Valencia to Tarragona, Spain, was derailed and thirty persons were killed and many injured.

The city of Jeffersonville has sued the Louisville & Southern Indiana Traction Company for $641.72, alleged to be due as the company's share of the cost of the improvement of several squares of the city streets with crushed rock and oil dressing, the remainder of the cost being paid from the general fund and not assessed against property owners who had heretofore paid for macadam improvement of the streets.

J. A. Ross, proprietor of the Ross Shoe store, placed an advertisement in the Republican several days ago advertising a certain make of shoes. He has received a letter from a man in Hardy, Mont., asking about the price of the shoe. The inquiry is certainly a compliment to Mr. Ross who wrote the ad as it shows that it was written in a manner to attract the attention of the reader. At the same time it demonstrates that it pays to advertise in the newspaper which has the largest circulation. Every day there are instances similar to this one which is evidence of the value of newspaper advertising.

Speedy Relief From Kidney Trouble.

"I had an acute attack of Bright's disease with inflammation of the kidneys and bladder," says Mrs. Cora Thorp, Jackson, Mich. "A bottle of Foley's Kidney Remedy overcame the attack, reduced the inflammation, took away the pain and made the bladder action normal."

A. J. PELLENS.

Melvin Jerrell is still suffering considerably from the injury to his left hand which he received Wednesday morning while exercising the fire horses. It required two stitches in dressing the wound. He will not be able to work for several weeks. Bert Wallace extra fireman, will work in his place until he is able to resume his duties.

Pneumonia Follows a Cold.

But never follows the use of Foley's Honey and Tar, which checks the cough and expels the cold. M. Stockwell, Hannibal, Mo., says, "I contracted cold and cough and was threatened with pneumonia. One bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar completely cured me."

CHANGES MADE

In Requirements Adopted by State Medical Board.

An order of the state board of medical registration and examination setting forth an outline of the minimum requirements of preparatory work has been adopted by the board. The outline is in many respects a re-draft of the requirements already in force. The most important change is that which deals with the courses to be pursued during the two years' collegiate course, preparatory to the medical course. At present any subjects may be taken as desired by the student, it being sufficient that a two years' course has been taken. The board prescribed that the preparation must include one year each of chemistry and biology, one of which must be taken in the college. The other may have been taken in the high school. Two full years of college English also were specified. The minimum requirements adopted become effective June 30, 1912.

A Healthful Old Age for Women

The turn of life is the most critical period in a woman's existence. Owing to modern methods of living not one woman in a thousand approaches this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very distressing symptoms.

Those dreadful hot flashes and the faint feeling that follows, sometimes with chills, extreme nervousness and despondency are symptoms of this condition.

Those hot flashes are just so many calls from nature for help. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life.

If this period is safely passed through the prospect will be good for a long period of sound health and comparative immunity from disease.

Here is Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be relied upon at this period:

Alton Station, Ky.—"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For months I suffered from female troubles in consequence of my age, and thought I could not live. I wrote you and after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new woman. I thank you so much for the good it has done me."—Mrs. Emma Bailey, R. R. No. 1, Alton Station, Ky.

Kewaskum, Wis.—"Your medicine was a blessing to me in my sickness at Change of Life. I cannot describe what I suffered for five long years from headache, backache, dizziness, no sleep, palpitation of heart and irregularities which are common at that period and sometimes continue for weeks at a time.

"I have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in dry form. I am 54 years old and can do all my work."—Mrs. Carl Dahlke, Kewaskum, Wis.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

DELAY IN SIGNING BILL

Temperance People Say Governor's Signature Withheld for a Purpose.

Since there has been so much unexpected delay upon the part of Governor Marshall in signing the Proctor option measure many people are wondering if there is not a purpose in the delay. Several reports have been circulated as the reason for withholding the governor's signature. When the bill was first presented to the Governor both houses were not in session and according to the law the measure can not be signed by the Governor unless the Senate and House of Representatives are in session. The bill was then recopied on account of the many mistakes in spelling and this delayed the signature some time. It was confidently expected, however, that the bill would become a law Wednesday, but for some reason it was not signed.

Some of the temperance people charge that the delay in signing the bill is done for the purpose of preventing it from becoming in force until after the time has expired when petitions for election might be considered by the commissioners in their February terms. Throughout the state the commissioners meet the first Monday of each month, and the meeting this month will be February 6. The petitions for such elections must be filed five days before the election. The temperance people think that the measure was held back until this time expired, and that there will be no further delay.

It was stated that the bill would be signed by Governor Marshall today.

Backache, Rheumatism, Nervousness.

Mrs. E. T. Schulz, Fort Wayne, Ind., "For three years I have suffered with my kidneys, having such pains in my back that I could not stoop over. My kidney action was too frequent and painful, leaving a sediment. A friend recommended Foley Kidney Pills which I began taking according to directions. After a short time the pains left my back, the kidney action became perfectly normal and today I am a well woman, thanks to Foley Kidney Pills."

A. J. PELLENS.

Rev. Hayden H. Allen, formerly of this city, returned to his home in Washington this morning. He preached at the special services at the Methodist church Wednesday evening.

This is the time of the year most trying on those inclined to be constipated. Many dread winter because of it. Don't worry, just take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, nature's surest, safest and best tonic regulator. Take it once a week. Start tonight. The Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

In Bad Fix

"I had a mishap at the age of 41, which left me in bad fix," writes Mrs. Georgia Usher, of Conyers, Ga. "I was unconscious for three days, and after that I would have fainting spells, dizziness, nervousness, sick headache, heart palpitation and many strange feelings. "I suffered greatly with ailments due to the change of life and had 3 doctors, but they did no good, so I concluded to try Cardui.

"Since taking Cardui, I am so much better and can do all my housework."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Do not allow yourself to get into a bad fix. You might get in so bad you would find it hard to get out.

Better take Cardui while there is time, while you are still in moderately good health, just to conserve your strength and keep you in tip top condition.

In this way your troubles, whatever they are, will gradually grow smaller instead of larger—you will be on the up-grade instead of the down—and by and bye you will arrive at the north pole of perfect health.
